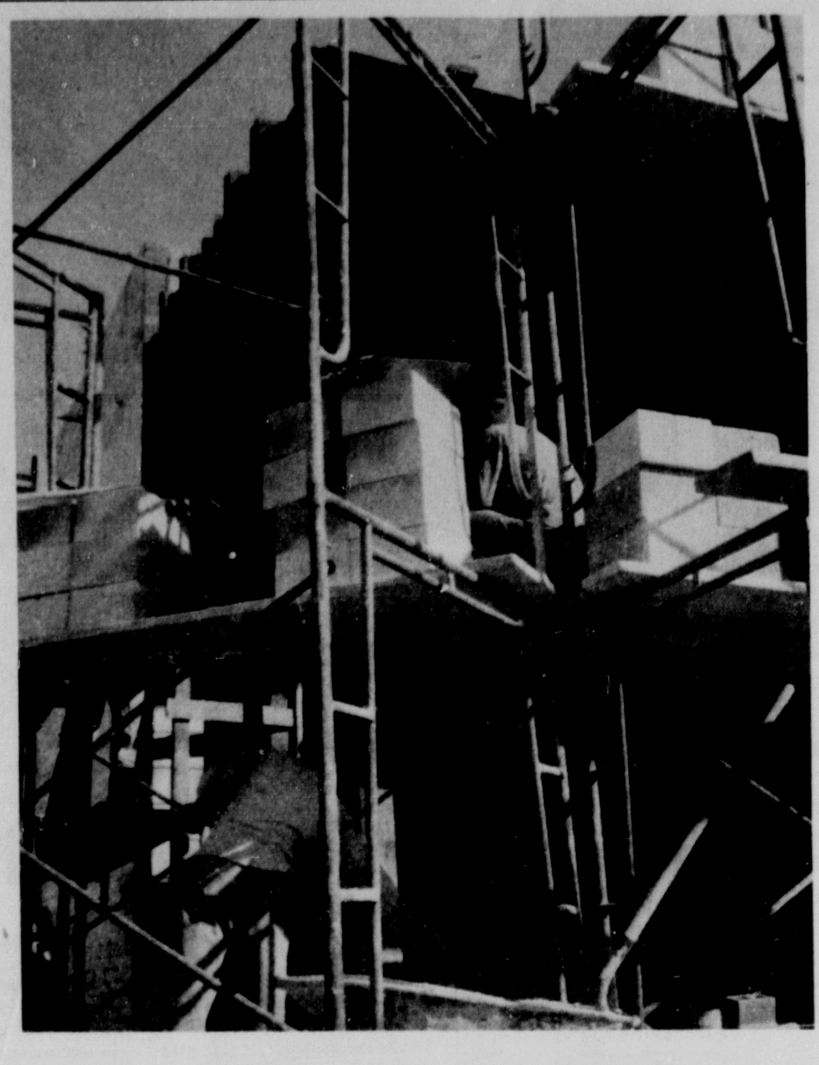
I guess Symphony Day was a success. About 1800 Cameron and county students heard the Dallas Symphony play Tuesday afternoon in two concerts and more than 600 heard the full concert last night, featuring conductor Anshel Brusilow and cellist Ralph Kirshbaum.

Band or music students and directors from Thorndale, Rockdale, Cameron, Temple High School, Temple Junior College were among the audiences. Yoe High band was getting special instruction from nine first chair musicians from the Symphony Wednesday morning.

The Orchestra played a quiet Bach number for an encore, the seventh number of the evening and the 20th number of the day for some or part of the orchestra under the direction in the afternoon of Assoc. Conductor Earl Bernard Murray and Conductor Brusilow.

If you have sung or played an instrument for more than three hours under these conditions, you can appreciate the sheer work involved.

Almost 2,500 people did.



REBUILDING is going on at the corner of First and North Central, with workmen started on the Lewis-Chili Shoe Store building. This is the first business going into the demolition area of the downtown urban renewal project.

175 Enter Jr. Stock Show

Showmen from throughout Milam County will converge on Cameron Saturday to participate in the 26th annual Milam County Junior Livestock Show.

Danny Phillips, assistant county agent, said about 175 entries have been received for the show.

Contestants are members of Future Farmers of America chapters and 4-H Clubs. The young people enter animals in four dividions - beef, dairy, swine and sheep.

The judging will begin this year at 9 a.m. with judging of the dairy females, breeding sheep, lambs, beef heifers, steers and conclude with the swine judging.

Biggest increase in entries are in the beef heifer, dairy and steer divisions, Phillips said.

There will be trophies presented to the Grand Champion in each division, with rosettes going to the Reserve Champion. All other entries will be classified according to their quality into blue, red and white ribbon winners.

An added attraction is the awarding of trophies to the top showman in each of the four major livestock areas. This award is presented to the individual doing the best job of presenting his animal to the judge.

Also, two lucky individuals will be winners of a butcher hog that will be given away at 3 p.m. A donation of $1 entitles the person to one ticket in the drawing and this money is used for premium money to the exhibitors and for other show expenses. Tickets are available from ag teachers, students, 4-H'ers and Extension agents.

"Due to the large increase in entries, added money is needed this year and anq year and any added assistance will be appreciated by the show," Phillips said.

The show will again be held in the cotton warehouse building in Cameron. It will get underway at 9 a.m. and continue on into the afternoon. A concession stand will be open at the show.

"Everyone is invited and encouraged to come out and help us make this year's show better than any before," Phillips said.

Bloodmobile To Visit Cameron On January 19

The Central Texas Red Cross Bloodmobile will be in Cameron at Methodist Fellowship Hall on Wednesday, January 19 from 12 noon until 6 p.m.

All types of blood are needed, however, there is a special call for 0 negative blood, of which 14 units were given to one patient at St. Edward Hospital in December.

The hospital used a total of 101 units during 1971.

Eighteen-year-olds are reminded that they no longer need parental consent to be blood donors.

Sister Aloysius, local blood program chairman, asks that all regular donors and prospective donors mark January 19 on their calendars and remember to donate blood on that date.

Elm Creek Watershed Completion Date Set

Completion date for the Elm Creek Watershed project has been revised to June 1 according to Glen Black, area conservationist with the Soil Conservation Service.

In a letter to County Judge O. B. Harden, Black said good progress was being made on the watershed, but the completion date was revised due to a decision to study the feasibility of including stream channel improvement in the work plan.

A recent reconnaissance of the watershed was made by State and Area Soil Conservation Service personnel to discuss the development of the work plan. "It was determined that floodwater retarding structures alone would not provide the desired level of protection in all parts of the watershed," Black said. "Therefore, the need for stream channel improvement will be investigated further in the lower reaches of the watershed.

At this time it is expected that the work plan will contain about 43 floodwater retarding structures and about 10 miles of open channel.

Black also pointed out that investigations indicate that there are at least three potential sites that would be excellent for including municipal and industrial water supply in the reservoirs. "They offer excellent opportunities to provide dependable water supplies to the small towns in the area and to the numerous small water companies in the area which have been financed by the Farmers Home Administration," he said.

The Elm Creek Watershed Authority has made numberous contacts with possible users of municipal and industrial water; however, the cost of including the storage has been prohibitive for any one user. Limited ground water studies by the watershed staff geologist indicate that the water table is being lowered due to heavy pumpage and it is questionable how long the ground water will provide a dependable source of good quality water.

County Views Joining COG

County Commissioners, meeting Monday, discussed joining a council of governments to comply with state and federal requirements for some assistance programs available to county school and city governments.

Presently at issue is a City of Cameron request for OEO funds to help finance sewerage projects in low income areas of the city. OEO officials have indicated that the request was being held up because the county was not in a council of governments with a Community Action program.

County Judge O. B. Harden told Commissioners that several local school and city governments in Cameron and Rockdale had joined the Bell County based Central Texas Council of Governments, but advised that the county look in other directions where more programs might be available.

He pointed out that the CTCOG does not have an OEO Community Action program which he felt would benefit Milam County.

"The problem is that Milam and Bell County do not have similar economic problems," Harden said. He pointed out that the 1970 directory published by the Department of Public Welfare showed Milam County with almost 7 percent of residents on some form of welfare. "The percentage in Bell County is very small by comparison," Harden said, "and as a result they aren't interested in the same programs that we need."

Harden said it would probably be possible to join a more closely aligned council, such as the Brazos Council of Governments at Bryan, if all of the government bodies in the county would request admitance in a united effort.

Commissioner LaVert McKinney requested that Judge Harden meet with city and school officials in Rockdale, Thorndale and Cameron to discuss the proposal.

"I don't like the idea of paying tax money to get tax money," McKinney said (referring to a charge of about 6 cents per county resident to join a council of governments). "But it seems that it is going to be necessary."

Harden pointed out that Milam County had lost an emergency food program last year because they were not affiliated with a council of governments. He said that program alone brought $2,000 a month into county welfare programs.

In other business Commissioners:

Read a petition from Milano requesting the Z. K. Thurman Jr. be appointed constable to fill the unexpired term of F. B. Burke who died last month. They also read a second petition requesting that Marvin Wesley Cotton be appointed to the post. Commissioners decided to take the petitions under advisement and wait for results of the May primary.

Authorized a call for bids for a new truck for Pct. 2 and two new cars for the sheriffs department. Bids will be opened at 9 a.m. January 28;

Discussed recent vandalism and thefts from county vehicles;

Drew names for a county Officers Salary Grievance Committee required under new state laws. Named to the committee were W. K. Kornegay, William Kelm and Clyde Hargrove. They will serve with a nine-man committee that includes the County Judge, County Attorney, County Sheriff, County Tax Assessor, County Treasurer, and District Clerk.

Trash Dumping Brings Complaints

Complaints are being received by the city about garbage and trash being dumped on the roadsides in rural areas.

James Hale, city works superintendent, reminds everyone that garbage and trash trucks are parked at the City Barn nights and weekends and garbage and trash may be placed in them by anyone who does not wish to wait for their regular garbage and trash pickup.

Trustees Hear Results Of Study

Cameron school trustees accepted a Cameron Urban Renewal offer of $8,625 for the CISD tax office building at a regular meeting of the school board Monday night and heard results of a preliminary study of school building needs by D. D. Matthews, Bryan architect.

Cameron Urban Renewal Attorney Don Humble met with the Board to finalize sale of the tax office building for the appraised price and to discuss temporary relocation in the front office space of the Urban Renewal offices on E. 1st St.

Concerning school building needs, Matthews presented several alternatives for board consideration following a study of present school facilities.

Among the suggestions were:

Moving all elementary grades (1 through 6) to the Junior High campus where additional classrooms would be built and convert the Yoe campus to a Jr.-Sr. high complex;

Or retain grades 1 and 2 in the present Ben Milam School location, replace the Ada Henderson School with a new building. This would leave the Junior and Senior high classes in their present locations with some building modifications;

Build a new gymnasium - field house on the Yoe Campus. Matthews said the present gymnasium building was structurally not worth reworking.

Matthews said he had a target date of 1974 for completion of the project, but Supt. D. R. Dodson said the board could not make any plans until final court decisions are made on school taxing, probably this summer.

Dodson pointed out that any building program would require a bond election and "this is out of the question until something is settled on the San Antonio school tax ruling."

In other business, bids on a new pick-up truck for school use were opened and rejected.

The February school board meeting was set back to February 17 to allow time to complete screening for a new head coach.

2400 Hear Symphony

An enthusiastic crowd of over 600 gave the Dallas Symphony Orchestra a standing ovation at the close of its evening concert in National Guard Armory Tuesday.

Earlier in the day in two afternoon concerts the orchestra played to over 1800 students from Cameron and surrounding schools, with special music and features to fit different ages.

Groups attended from Buckholts, Maysfield, and Thorndale.

Guest soloist Ralph Kirshbaum showed magical skill on the cello, playing "Rococo Variations, Opus 33" by Tchaikovsky.

The program was varied, and included "Introduction to Act III, Lohengrin" by Wagner; "Prelude and Liebestod from Tristan und Isolde" by Wagner; "Capriccio Espagnol" by Rimsky Korsakow, and "Dance of the Seven Veils from Salome" by Strauss.

For an encore, the orchestra offered a selection by Bach.

A reception followed the concert Tuesday evening.

Contributions from National Endowment of the Arts, Alcoa Foundation, Cameron Schools, neighboring districts, and individual patrons funded the expenses of the orchestra.

Wednesday a number of first chair musicians held a clinic for members of the Yoe High School band.

It was a "first" for Cameron and will long be remembered by classic patrons in the area.

More 'Inside' News...

First it was the Pentagon Papers, which described the Vietnam policy-making process. And now it is the "Anderson Papers."

Jack Anderson is the widely syndicated columnist who is heir to the Washington Merry-Go-Round standing of Drew Pearson, now deceased.

Somehow, Anderson's column in recent days has noted inside information on the White House while U. S. policy was being determined during the India - Pakistan crisis by the President, Dr. Henry Kissinger and other high level officials.

Anderson quotes what is said under pressure and to whom. Mostly by paraphrase, reports noted, publication of early December White House meetings have now been published abroad and put a cloak of silence in Washington, except a defense by press secretary Ronald Ziegler of Dr. Kissinger's role in U. S. policy making.

It would seem these reports, like the Pentagon Papers, which were leaked in toto to the press are in the same vein.

The press is getting its share of inside information these days. And some of it does its share of shaking the ol' American family tree. And it usually confirms the highest decision makers are also human.

WHAT OTHERS SAY ...

'Work Ethic' vs. 'Life Ethic'

Whither the American "work ethic" and productivity these days? The two --very much related-- have been a favorite theme of President Nixon, who would rekindle the former and stimulate the latter to keep the U. S. competitive and No. 1. But is prodding man to greater output and tying that to a philosophy of material success adequate today? Or do we have to stop and redefine our terms and look for new answers?

There is enough evidence around to indicate that new concepts may be needed. The traditional idea of turning out more goods per man-hour may not be as appealing as it once was to the worker, in spite of higher pay. One need only look at the boredom and dissatisfaction on Detroit assembly lines to get an inkling that productivity and the work ethic no longer go hand in hand.

And how does one approach a service oriented economy, which this nation is slowly becoming, where there may be high satisfaction in the job but a difficulty in measuring productivity, let alone increasing it?

Another significant distress signal is the small but alarming number of the younger generation who literally have "dropped out," turning their backs on the competitive society that the drive for material well-being and productivity created. The meaning of productivity in the commune is much different than in the shop.

This does not mean that the powers that be are not aware of these problems. The President's Commission on Productivity touched on them in its September report. It talked of labor-management productivity bargaining, which brings "conscious attention to the tradeoff between progress for the enterprise, for large groups of employees and for the consumer, and costs which may be incurred by individual groups of workers." It pointed to the need for more focus on manpower planning and occupation oriented education, so that society can usefully involve all its members rather than creating heaps of wasted castoffs, the result of unanticipated technological change and irrelevant training.

Former Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz put it this way in a recent speech: "We are going to have to think about not just a 'work ethic,' but what life is all about. . . . We should look for a 'life ethic" that gives work more meaning." In such an environment productivity will have a much different definition than today.

Federal Court Hears Challenges To Redistricting

By Bill Boykin

Candidates for the legislature are keeping an anxious eye on a federal court which last week heard massive, consolidated challenges to House and Senate redistricting.

The three judges listened to four days of testimony and arguments and took the case under study. A decision is expected in a week or two in order to allow time for appeals to the U. S. Supreme Court before the February 7 filing deadline.

Emphasis in the trial of suits filed in San Antonio, Tyler, Houston and Dallas was on the issue of single member vs. multi-member (countywide) House of Representatives districts for metropolitan areas.

Challengers of the 1971 reapportionment (based on the 1970 census) by a five-member board made these key claims:

* Countywike districts tend to prevent election of blacks, Mexican-Americans and Republicans.

* Elections in the multi-member districts require expensive campaigns which few candidates, other than those backed by big interests, can afford.

* Single member or individual districts for the big counties insure a smaller constituency and thereby make legislators more available, responsive and accountable to the voters.

The state, in defense of the 1971 reapportionment, maintained:

* Multi-member districts are not discriminatory and do not dilute minority group representation.

* Prior Supreme Court rulings have held that either multi - or - single - member districts are acceptable as long as they are fairly drawn.

* Single - member districts tend to fragment a county's representation and lessen chances of delegation harmony on key county-wide issues.

Federal Circuit Judge Irving L. Goldberg of Dallas, U. S. District Judge William Wayne Justice of Tyler and U. S. District Judge John W. Wood Jr. of San Antonio must make the decision whether to invalidate the apportionment and draw new lines or let the board's plan stand.

CAMPAIGN REPORTS

Secretary of State Bob Bullock has urged state and county political organization chairmen to report campaign contributions and expenditures as candidates are directed to.

He said 31 other states require such reports by law, though Texas does not. State Democratic Chairman Roy Orr of DeSoto rebuked Bullock for "overreaching" his authority.

Bullock disclosed he is having legislation drafted to require full disclosure by political parties at the state and local levels. Until that legislation can be enacted, he recommended the political organizations make the reports voluntarily on contributions and expenditures after Jan. 1, 1972.

The secretary suggested filing reports on party funds used for county office campaigns with the county clerk, district or state office reports with the secretary of state here and reports of party money spent in local elections with the city secretary or city clerk.

MASS ASSEMBLY

Texas Department of Public Safety set a February 29 hearing on proposed rules and regulations and minimum safety and good order standards for mass gatherings.

The 62nd Legislature directed DPS to promulgate such rules which must be met by promoters in order to get official permission to hold mass gatherings, such as outdoor rock concerts.

Among the proposed rules are those governing adequate parking, lighting, access by emergency vehicles and responsibility of the promoter to preserve order within the assigned area.

COURTS SPEAK

The Texas Supreme Court sustained lower court orders stopping sale of 500 magazines, films, books and cards found by a San Antonio judge to be "obscene." The Fourth Court of Civil Appeals, whose judgment was affirmed, had earlier knocked down that part of the original trial order prohibiting sale of "similar" material.

The Third Court of Civil Appeals upheld the State Board of Examiners of Psychologists and refused to direct certification of a man who holds a doctorate in education and 127 hours of psychology graduate courses.

A Victoria County mother won in the Supreme Court a new trial of her suit to regain custody of five children adopted by grandparents.

AG OPINIONS

Resident aliens are eligible for old age assistance and aid to the blind, Atty. Gen. Crawford C. Martin has held in light of U. S. Supreme Court decisions.

In other recent opinions, Martin concluded:

* A home rule city has authority to form a non-profit, no-stock corporation to acquire and improve land for industrial development.

* A proposed Taylor County junior college district to operate under contract with three private, church-related institutions in Abilene is unconstitutional.

* Motorboats or vessels must have at least one Coast Guard-approved life-saving device for every person on board.

* A mineral lessee's claim for refund of payments to the state may be paid when coupled with verification by the General Land Office and a legislative appropriation.

* A national bank's reserve for interest collected but not earned and reserve for loans overdue and doubtful may be considered as a factor for ad valorem tax purposes as part of personal property.

* "Riprap" spilled from trucks falls within the definition of loose material prohibited by a new law.

* All price advertising by optometrists is prhibited.

* Tuition for students from another college at state higher educational institutions is at least $200 per regular semester.

* College faculty members may make only one election as to whether they will participate in the optional retirement program or continue membership in the teacher retirement system.

* Community Centers for Mental Health and Mental Retardation are entitled to election of coverage under Unemployment Compensation are entitled to election of coverage under Unemployment Compensation act.

* Reserve deputy sheriffs may carry weapons.

* Contempt of a commissioners court is punishable by fine not to exceed $25 or imprisonment up to 24 hours.

* The Governor's Commission on Physical Fitness is authorized to purchase a station wagon out of appropriated funds.

SCHOOL FINANCE

Gov. Preston Smith designated a 12 - member task force to advise him on possible state action needed following a federal court decision that the Texas system of financing public schools is unconstitutional.

At almost the same time, Smith directed the newly-created Commission on Intergovernmental Relations to head a study of the effects of the case and report suggested solutions to the legislature by January, 1973.

Meanwhile, Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes expanded a senate committee on urban education and directed an examination of finance problems in the wake of the federal court action. At least seven groups are now in the search for solutions.

OLD PHILOSOPHER

Dear editar:

I have long felt that whooping cranes, like farmers and space scientists, ought to be preserved if possible, but lately I've begun to wonder how far man ought to go in trying to keep all endangered species alive.

For example, I read an article in a newspaper last night that reported wildlife biologists were disheartened because their efforts to raise black-footed ferrets in captivity so they could later be released were failing. They only four captured females in this branch of the weasel family died and the scientists aren't sure any more are living in their natural habitat which used to stretch from Texas to Canada.

That's too bad, I said at first, although frankly up to that point I didn't know there was such an animal as a black-footed ferret, although I know if you let an ecologist know that something is about to become extinct the fire of battle lights up in his eyes and he jumps into the fray. Wonder what they'd do if they heard the mosquito was becoming an endangered species?

But I read further in the article and found out the black-footed ferret, if he's still around, lives in prairie dog burrows and rarely shows itself during daylight, "preferring to stalk sleeping prairie dogs under cover of darkness."

Well, maybe ecologists want to preserve the ferrets but I have a notion the prairie dogs wouldn't be interested in that program at all.

Furthermore, say the scientists do capture some more of the rare weasels and produce enough to turn loose again. How long would it be before the prairie dog became an endangered species? This of course would call for a program to capture prairie dogs, nurture them while they multiplied, and turn them loose, meanwhile keeping a close count on the ferrets who may have been thinning out pretty fast what with no prairie dogs to slip up on in the night. The thing could go on forever. There'd never be any unemployment among ecologists.

There are times maybe when we should just leave things alone, letting prairie dogs, ferrets and other nations work their way out of their own problems.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

CHARGES M-16 ARMY RIFLES 'DOCTORED'

REP. LES ASPIN (Wis.) "... I released seven affidavits by Colt Industry employees and former Colt employees detailing charges against Colt accusing the company of subverting its own quality control program. . .

"So many more people have called so many aspects of Colt's M-16 program into question that I believe that only extensive public hearings not closed door investigation can clear the air of charges.

"The letter from the Army general that I am releasing today indicated that the Army has never approved the practice of BENDING RIFLE BARRELS BY HAND or by POUNDING THEM ON THE GROUND. According to the affidavits, senior military officials have seen rifle barrels bent by hand. Yet, the Army has done nothing about this obvious contradiction. Either the Army should allow the practice and explain why it is permissible or it should make sure that the bending of rifle barrels stops.

"The affidavit by the Colt worker that I am releasing today indicated that Colt workers were given special orders, in direct violation of Government regulations to place illegal stamps on rifles to avoid retesting after defects has been found. Government specifications indicated that when almost any part has been replaced, the rifle should be returned for a special firing test series. However, under the orders of a Colt official, workers were forced to stamp adjusted traveler cards on the rifles, avoiding the special series.

"The second affidavit written by the former Government inspector, alleges that he 'repeatedly informed superiors verbally and in writing, of findings of mischief by Colt's employees during performance tests. No action was taken to assure tougher control'. . .

"I do not know if these allegations are correct or not but the American people have a right to know the full story. I am afraid the military cannot be expected to adequately investigate improper practices in what they have been involved. . . Therefore, I am requesting the chairman of the Armed Services Committee (Mr. Hebert (La.) to hold public hearings to permit a full and open discussion of all the allegations and charges. . ."

* * * * *

A GRASSROOTS COMMENT

The first charges against Colt's firearms were made by a Ralph Nader group.

The CONGRESSIONAL RECORD of Nov. 22, 1971 contained this statement by Sen. Barry Goldwater, ". . .Consequently, when this latest allegation was made I contacted the Department of Defense and was assured that the Pentagon is satisfied that Colt's weapons continue to be of the highest quality. . ."

A prison sentence awaits anyone who swears under oath to a false statement on an affidavit. The proposed hearings should be very enlightening.—J.C.

Letters to the Editor

December 21, 1971

Dear Mr. Luecke:

I have just read with great interest for the umpteenth time your article for computers for newspapers from the February 6th, 1971 Publishers' Auxiliary. We too have Compugraphic typesetting equipment as well as the small IBM 402 accounting machine, sorter and key punch for accounting purposes and are wondering what information you might spare us in your Century NCR accounting machines and typesetters.

Was there much difficulty in switching over from your original equipment and what was your original equipment. What comments did you receive from your advertisers on the new type billing and what other information and reports do you compile from these billings. How do you figure your commissions for your salesmen from these reports, what percentage advertising is compiled and in general any information that you can send us.

Also, would you please send copies of the various forms you use in this operation. We have almost outgrown our computers and are looking around for better methods.

Any information that you might send us will be greatly appreciated.

Sincerely,
L. Rudy,

Apples: Magestic Fruit Of The 1000 Uses Is Low In Calories

What's so good about an apple?

That question could start and interesting discussion. Apples have been given credit for everything, including magic. One a day will "keep the doctor away." Or, it has been said that a raw apple is better than a toothbrush.

And, from the standpoint of menu planning, apples are sometimes called "the fruit of the thousand uses."

Apples are not a source of any one specific nutrient. But, they are a delightful mixture of modest amounts of a number of important food nutrients.

They are relatively low in calories -- 1 mendium apple (1/3 pound, 2 inches by 2 1/2 inches) has only 70 calories. Most of the energy supplied by apples comes from quickly available fruit sugars. So they're popular as snack items and quick picker-uppers.

You can rate apples high on pleasurable eating. Raw apples reach their peak in delightful goodness when eaten out of hand. But they're also a good foundation for every fruit salad imaginable. They go with bananas, nuts, celery, cabbage, and other crips salad greens.

Sheer enjoyment is reason enough to eat apples. But don't overlook health and nutrition reasons. Everyone needs fruits and vegetables every day -- at least 4 servings.

If your family's menus are low in this food group, can you think of any better way to increase the intake than by the proverbial "apple a day?" Apples are an especially good choice now that they are so abundant.

Here are a few exciting ways to use the abundance of apples now in your markets:

For a special party salad: Mix together apples and other fruits in season with celery, leetuce, and cashew nuts. Blend in mayonnaise thinned with whipping cream. Place in a lettuce cup and top with vanilla ice cream or a scoop of orange sherbet. A salad meal designed to please. As a matter of fact, this idea could easily be turned into a festive and compliment - winning dessert!

APPLE CHEESE SALAD

Wash, but don't peel, 3 to 4 red skinned apples. Dice to measure 2 cups. Place in bowl along with 1 cup thinly sliced celery, 3/4 cup drained, canned pineapple tidbits, 1/2 cup cubed cheddar cheese, and 1/2 cup creamy Russian dressing (mayonnaise blended with sour cream sparked with grated horseradish and seasoned with tarragon vinegar). Toss gently until salad dressing coats all. Serve on leetuce. . .as 4 generous portions. Excellent with a piping hot bowl of split pea soup.

TANGY APPLE COMPOTE

Wash, peel, core, and dice 4 red apples. Place in bowl. Add 1 1/2 cups each of seedless grapes, drained crushed pineapple, and ginger ale. Gently mix. Portion into compote or cocktail glasses. Using 1/2 cup shredded coconut, garnish the tops. An excellent, light-hearted way to open a heavy meal. Makes 8 servings.

CRUNCHY APPLE RINGS

Don't have time to sautee apple slices to go along with that pork entree? Then try this. Wash and core red apples, but do not pare. Slice into rings about 1/2 inch thick. Dip in lemon juice and sprinkle lightly with sugar. If you like, finely chop some watercress or parsley. . .and decorate the top of each slice. Serve with crisp brown - and - serve pork sausages, frizzled ham, smoked pork butt, baked pork chops, roast loin of pork, broiled ham slices, or baked ham.

Many of our favorite dishes are traditional.

And a cold winter day is the perfect for chicken fanciers to put in a request for their all-time favorite --chicken with dumplings.

Chicken With Dumplings

For the chicken:
1 chicken, cut into serving pieces
Water
Salt

Place chicken in covered kettle, add water to cover and simmer for thee to four hours, or until tender. When done, remove chicken from broth and keep hot in a warm, covered dish. Remove fat from broth and measure broth. For each cup of broth mix 2 tablespoons chicken fat with 1/2 tablespoon flour. Add a small quantity of broth to the fat and four mixture. Add to the broth in the kettle, stirring constantly. Cook for 10 minutes. Salt to taste. The gravy is now ready for cooking the dumplings.

For the dumplings:
3/4 cup sifted flour
1/2 tsp salt.
2 1/2 tsp baking powder
1 egg, beaten
1/3 cup milk

Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Add egg to milk. Combine liquid and dry ingredients. Drop by spoonfuls into boiling chicken gravy. Cover tightly and cook for 15 minutes. Do not remove the cover while the dumplings are cooking.

Church Ceremony Unites Couple

Miss Carolyn Silvey became the bride of Mr. Thomas N. Ivey in a double ring candlelight ceremony, Monday, December 27, 1971, at the First Baptist Church of Cameron. The Rev. James E. Lafferty read the vows before an altar with candelabra and poinsettia. Ladis Marek, Jr. provided wedding music.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ladelle Silvey of Minerva and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry N. Ivey of Cameron.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a floor length gown of bridal satin and lace. The gown featured an empire waistline edged with seed pearls and full blown sleeves. Her shoulder length veil of illusion fell from a crown of pearls. She carried a bouquet of cascading carnations encircling two white orchids. Her only jewelry was a pin worn by three generations of the groom's family.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Linda Jenkins, sister of the bride, of Weatherford. She wore a floor length gown of red rose satin similiar to her sisters with a matching bow in her hair. Her bouquet was of peppermint carnations. Bridesmaids were Gwen Ivey, sister of the groom, and Shelley and Renda Roddam of Minerva. Their gowns were of emerald green satin with matching bows and they carried bouquets of red carnations.

Lori McGregor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. McGregor of Cameron, served as flower girl. She wore a floor length gown of rose red satin. Ward Roddan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Roddam of Minerva served as ring bearer.

Dale Lafferty of Cameron served the groom as best man. Groomsmen were Charles McGregor and Jerry Heitman both of Cameron and Clifford Whiteley of Minerva. Ushers included Bill Holt, cousin of the groom of McMurray, Pennsylvania, David Barrett of Waco, and Jim Lafferty of Cameron.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Silvey chose a dress of royal blue with black accessories and wore a corsage of white carnations. The groom's mother wore a navy blue dress with white trim and also a white carnation corsage.

A reception was held following the ceremony in the Fellowship Hall. In the houseparty were Mrs. Don Roddam, Mrs. Kenneth Hollas, Mrs. Charles McGregor, Mrs. Charles D. Chandler, Miss Cindy Kunz and Miss Frances Zotz.

The bride is a graduate of Rockdale High School and is now employed at the Citizens National Bank of Cameron.

The bridegroom is a graduate of C. H. Yoe High School in Cameron, attended Temple Junior College and is now employed at Milam Broadcasting Company in Cameron.

Motor Bureau Revises Farm Truck Driver Rules

WACO

Farmers and ranchers have won a clear-cut victory in regard to farm truck driver regulations, according to J. T. (Red) Woodson, president of the Texas Farm Bureau.

The final revised regulations which have been issued and in effect since Jan. 1 are in accordance with Farm Bureau's recommendations, the state farm leader said.

Woodson said Farm Bureau members around the nation responded to a call for action last Spring that resulted in a decision by the Bureau of Motor Carrier Safety to change the proposed stringent rules on farm truck driver qualifications. The proposed revisions announced on June 8 are similar to the final revised rules.

In brief, these revised regulations provide a complete exemption from federal regulation of truck driver qualifications in the case of a driver of a farm truck:

1. If the gross weight of the truck is 10,000 pounds or less, or

2. If the truck is a straight truck with a gross weight over 10,000 pounds, within a radius of 150 miles of the farm, or

3. If the truck is engaged in transporting machinery or supplies to or from a farm for custom harvesting or transporting custom harvesting or transporting custom harvested crops from the farm to storage or market, or

4. If the truck is engaged in hauling bees in seasonal movement.

A partial exemption is made in the case of the driver of a farm truck which is a combination truck with a gross weight in excess of 10,000 pounds, within a radius of 150 miles of the farm. In such cases, the driver must be at least 18 years of age, and after next Jan. 1, must carry with him while driving a certificate showing he has passed a medical examination.

In addition to the provisions spelled out in the revised rules, the Bureau of Motor Carriers said that: "Generally, the operation of trucks wholly within a state are not subject to the Driver Qualification Regulations."

Farmers or their employees who are not exempt as provided above are subject to the same regulations as non-farm drivers. These requirements are that the driver must:

1. Be at least 21 years old.

2. Take a road test in driving a truck.

3. Take a written examination in the federal motor vehicle safety regulations.

4. Pass a medical examination and carry a certificate so indicating.

5. If an employee, file with his employer information relative to items 1 through 4 above, and information relative to his background and experience. The employer is required to file such information.

The Department of Transportation is preparing a leaflet summarizing the revised regulations. These will be distributed by the Agricultural Extension Service.

County Agent's Notes

Agent Visits Area Greenhouses

By Bill McCutcheon

Dr. John Larsen, Extension Horticulturist and I visited John Zarosky's, Cameron, Forrest Green's, Buckholts, and S. C. Bland's, Rockdale greenhouse tomato operations January 5th.

The home gardens meeting scheduled for the morning of the 5th in Cameron, was canceled because of inclement weather and the day was spent visiting and trouble-shooting at greenhouse operations in Milam County.

Greenhouse operators got a good set of fruit early but are having problems now due to extended cloudy weather causing leaf mold, aggravating micronutrient deficiencies, and causing pollination problems.

I have a healthy respect for anyone who can produce a greenhouse tomato drop. This is intensified farming at its best and with the problems these people face the current price of tomatoes isn't too high.

BUBBLE GREENHOUSE

The bubble greenhouse has been an excellent innovation in cutting the initial expense of building greenhouses and in cutting heating costs. Both Green and Bland have the bubblehouses in operation and are doing well with them.

Forrest Green told me that he was interested in building greenhouses for homeowners or commercial operations. He has had visitors from all over the state who were interested in seeing his houses. The construction prices he quoted sound very good.

FREEZE DAMAGE

The recent freeze took a heavy toll of the small grain pastures in Milam County. In visiting Gene Hillmans and Henry Richters farms January 6th, I noted that all triticales varieties were severely damaged.

Virtually 100 percent of the foliage on the triticales was frozen and it was to early to tell whether or not there was plant loss. Damage on oats was less severe with a loss of about 50 percent of the leaf area on the ora variety and reported 80 - 90 percent leaf loss in Flovida 500.

TAM Wintergreen Hardingrass on the Henry Richter farm also received considerable leaf burn with 50 to 60 percent of the leaf area lost on both old plantings and recent fall plantings.

Frank Kratochvil said that his Tritcales plantings were hard hit also, and said that virtually 100 percent of the leaf area was lost. Frank said he did not think that the plant itself was killed, but that it was too early to tell.

The thing that is so bad about the freeze damage is the extensive loss of winter pastures. Even if there is no plant kill, small grain pastures have been severely retarded and a lot of valuable grazing has been lost. This means a lot more supplemental feeding.

Not only were small grain pastures hit hard; the bur clover was frozen back and rescue grass was also burned. This is very unusual with the severity due to an exceptionally mild winter with fast growth and a very rapid drop in temperature and hard freeze.

This was the first freeze of the winter season. Johnsongrass, bermuda, and volunteer grain sorghum were thriving until January 4.

GREENBUGS

Greenbugs can be found in many small grain fields. As yet populations are not heavy enough to cause alarm but fields should be watched. Cool weather is favorable for buildup of greenbug populations.

WTSU Grant To Aid In Research

It was announced this week that the Texas Cattle Feeders Association has made a grant in the amount of $5,000 to West Texas State University, School of Agriculture, to be used in animal disease research.

Lloyd Bergsma, executive vice-president of the Association, said, "This research grant to W.T.S.U. is a part of the broad research program being developed by TCFA. Research is one of the major functions of the Association and problems with respiratory diseases are costly to the industry."

Bergsma said, "The Association is pleased to be working with W.T.S.U. in efforts to find solutions to this problem."

John W. McNeill, acting head of the Department of Animal Science at W.T.S.U., accepted the grant for the University. McNeill said, "A $4,182 Organized Research Grant from the University will be put with the Cattle Feeders contribution to go toward a study of respiratory diseases of stocker and feeder cattle."

During the fall of 1971 the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo gave the University $10,000 to inaugurate the disease research program. The research will be conducted by McNeill in conjunction with Dr. John Coleman, research veterinarian, Texas A&M University, who is stationed at the South Western Great Plains Research Center at Bushland, Texas.

More REAP Funds Due

U. S. Rep. W. R. Poage said he has been notified by the Agriculture department of release of $55.5 million to supplement $140 million in funds allocated for the Rural Environmental Assistance Program (REAP), formerly known as the Agriculture Conservation Program (ACP).

Earl Butz, secretary of agriculture, said the action was in response to indications around the country that farmers are willing to match or exceed this additional investment in soil and water conservation and pollution provention and abatement practices.

The action taken was in line with Poage's insistence that all funds which have been appropriated by Congress for REAP work be released by the administration.

ASCS NEWS

Signup in the 1972 cotton, feed grain and wheat programs will begin on Thursday, February 3, and end on Friday, March 10. Anyone wishing to obtain more information regarding the 1972 cotton, feed grain and wheat programs should contact the Milam County ASCS office.

REAP FUNDS

Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz has announced that an additional $55 1/2 million had been made available for the 1972 Rural Environmental Assistance program.

Secretary Butz said the Administration's action was in response to indications from across the country that farmers are willing to match, or exceed, the additional investment in soil and water conservation and pollution prevention and abatement practices.

The 55 1/2 million will augment an initial allocation of $140 million, announced last October so States and counties could start operation under the 1972 REAP.

The announcement cited several significant events of recent months that led to the decision to release additional funds for the 1972 REAP:

-- On October 1, reports from selected States showed a 400 percent increase in 1971 over 1970 in funds to be expended for pollution abatement practices.

-- On October 28, during a meeting of the President's Advisory Board on Water Pollution Control, the need for additional REAP funds was recognized and documented.

-- In November, REAP reports indicated an increased demand for expansion in 1972 of the REAP farm and ranch solid waste disposal pilot project to additional States.

-- On December 3, President Nixon approved an Oklahoma watershed, which was the 213th watershed project approved by President Nixon during his Administration. Additional REAP cost - share funds are required to help complete work called for in the watershed plans.

-- REAP reports during the fall of 1971 indicate a substantial increase in demand for REAP forestry practices over previous years.

Under REAP the Federal Government shares, generally on a 50-50 basis, the cost of such practices in the effort to solve rural environmental problems for the primary benefit of the total rural community and the public.

REAP is administered by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service through its farmer - elected committees. The Soil Conservation Service, Forest Service, and Extension Service provide technical and educational assistance.

One stormy night our lights went out. The blackness was total.
Little Mary screamed and grabbed me. The boys, trying to be brave, banged across the room.
I comforted them, trying to hold all against the terrors of the dark.
Then the back door banged, and there was Bob standing in the door holding a lighted candle.
"Daddy, Daddy," cried the children, their fears forgotten, as the room resumed its safe proportions in the light. Gaily they helped to light the candles and build a roaring fire.
How like that candle is my church. The spiritual resources it offers light my life with a sense of proportion and confidence, no matter how dark things seem.
Your church can brighten your life, if you give it a chance.

City Telephones Showing Increase

More than 3,370 telephones were in service in Cameron as of December 1, a healthy increase of almost 3.5 per cent during 1971, Dennis Richter, manager for Southwestern Bell, said today.

"Telephone growth is considered a good indicator of overall economic growth," Richter said. "The addition of 117 phones last year shows that Cameron is on the grow."

Richter said Cameron residents are using their phones, too. "In November, 13,825 calls were dialed here on an average business day."

He said that two central office projects were completed in 1971 that added dial equipment to provide a total of 300 more phone numbers to meet present and future growth.

"Growth and expansion are likely to continue for the city's communications system," Richter said. "Telephone engineers predict that Cameron will have 4,250 telephones in service by the end of 1975."

He added that a record $150 million construction budget has been set for Southwestern Bell's San Antonio Area, of which Cameron is a part. The 1972 budget includes expenses for central office equipment, buildings and additional plant facilities, such as telephone cable, in an area covering approximately the western two-thirds of Texas.

Gas Drying
Electric Drying
Either we're four times cheaper, or they're four times more expensive.
Gas drying is not only easier on your pocketbook, it also makes life a whole lot easier.
For one thing, gas drying practically eliminates the need for ironing. The new gas dryers are so gentle that clothes come out almost wrinkle-free. Clothes are tumbled dry, then cooled, and gently fluffed. Automatically. Pleats stay pleated. Creases stay creased.
All this for a cost of about a penny a load. (Or $2.00 a ton.)
Take a look at the new gas dryers at your gas appliance dealer. Then do something nice for yourself.
And your pocketbook.

MENTAL HEALTH MATTERS

Bertram S. Brown, M.D.
Director
National Institute of Mental Health

Parent Therapists

Training parents to be behavior therapists and to help in the treatment of their own mentally and emotionally ill children has many advantages when contrasted with traditional psychotherapies for children.

This is reported by Dr. Paul W. Clement of Pasadena, California in a recent issue of the Journal of School Health and Mental Health Digest.

Dr. Clement finds that, by this method, professional therapists, of whom there are not enoough trained and available to meet manpower needs in this field, can reach a larger number of children and families in a year—and the whole treatment program is less expensive for each family.

Also, parents can provide multiple treatments each week, and their participation in therapy wins wholehearted support and avoids arousing parents' suspiciousness as to what is being done to or with their children.

First step in Dr. Clement's program is for the consultant professional to establish goals with the parents. For example, they will set up goals of reducing behavioral excesses of the child and increasing the frequency of desirable behaviors.

The next step is to teach the parents the behavioral principles behind the things they will be doing and to give them training in treatment practices.

Before the parents institute therapy measures, they collect data on the target behaviors which they wish to change in their children. Then they introduce the measures, called "interventions", as instructed.

The work is continued until the desired goals are reached. Then the consultant helps the parents arrange for the home environment to maintain permanently the newly acquired behaviors. When the consultation sessions are ended, formal followup is agreed on and scheduled.

This method of Dr. Clement's appears promising and is illustrated of the healthy innovations in clinical research and treatment methodology that are burgeoning today.

Storage Fits In Stairwell

Stairwells, usually synonymous with dead space, offer many opportunities for building in additional storage.

Floor-to-ceiling cabinets can be extended over stairs leading to a lower level. The lower part can be used to store off-season clothing and the upper level for linens and blankets.

In place of a railing around an open stairwell, enclosed shelves of 1x12-inch western wood can be constructed for books or displaying collections or artwork.

Basement stairway doors often are narrower than the stairwell. In this situation there is space between the door frame and the wall for a cabinet with louvered wood doors for storing mops and brooms.

The wall of a room enclosing a descending stairwell offers a fine area for recessed shelves or cabinets. Simply cut holes in the wall and build in the units, stereo speakers, even a television set.

They should be braced from below and set back from the head of the stairs sufficiently to allow head space over the stairs.

Congress Urged To View Soaring Defense Costs

By William Scally
Reuter Correspondent

WASHINGTON Congress is being urged to take a hard look at the ever increasing complexity of modern weapons -- and to consider whether all the technical "goodies" loaded on todays planes and ships are really necessary.

Critics of soaring defense costs point out that France, Sweden, Britain and the Soviet Union build first class fighter planes with fewer men and far less money.

The case for more simplicity and lower costs has been made at recent meetings of the Senate Armed Service Committee.

The F-14 fighter, still being tested for service with the Navy, has been strongly attacked. The price for one plane: 16.7 million dollars.

Critics earlier aimed their fire at the giant C5A transport plane, plagued by troubles that helped add to the 58 million dollar cost for each plane.

Production of the C5A landed Lockheed, the makers, into economic troubles. Critics said the problem was partly due to the complex specifications of the plane.

Future defense plans include the B-1 bomber, which could cost 80 million dollars a plane. Its nuclear attack missiles alone could cost one million dollars apiece. The Navy is also talking about a one billion dollar nuclear powered aircraft carrier.

The expert, Robert Perry, told the committee that in France, Sweden and Britain, the government overseers of development of fighter planes rarely consist of more than 30 specialists. In the United States he said, the figure was normally around 150.

In European companies the number of engineers and other skilled people committed to a program for developing a plane seldom exceeded 700. In the United States, he said, from two to 10 times that many comparable experts were employed.

Perry said the differences between U.S. and European planes were not large enough to explain the striking differences between man power resources devoted to them.

Marcel Dassault of France, he said, made high quality planes with low budgets, little paperwork and with little governmental and military control. Improvements were made gradually, prototypes were tested extensively and super-sophisticated electronic systems avoided if they might not be worth their cost.

MR. BUSINESSMAN:

IF THERE REALLY IS NO NEED FOR CONTINUOUS ADVERTISING -

MINISTERS

SHOULD PREACH ONLY ONE SERMON OR SO PER YEAR. PEOPLE ARE AGAINST SIN ANYWAY SO WHY RAP ABOUT IT.

TRAFFIC LIGHTS

SHOULD BE TURNED OFF AT DANGEROUS INTERSECTIONS TO SAVE ELECTRICITY. EVERYBODY SHOULD KNOW IT'S A DANGEROUS SPOT AND THAT OUGHT TO BE SUFFICIENT.

HIGHWAY POLICE

SHOULD STOP DRIVING UP AND DOWN THE HIGHWAYS. NO NEED TO CAUTION DRIVERS BY PATROLLING HIGHWAYS. DRIVERS KNOW THE LAW AND ALWAYS OBEY IT.

TEACHERS

SHOULD NOT REVIEW LESSONS. TELL CHILDREN JUST ONCE AND THEY WILL NEVER FORGET.

BUT

IF YOU ARE ONE OF THE FOOLISH KIND-LIKE THE NOTRE DAME CATHEDRAL THAT HAS STOOD FOR SIX CENTURIES BUT CONTINUES TO RING THE BELL EVERY DAY TO LET PEOPLE KNOW IT IS STILL THERE - AND BELIEVE IN CONTINUOUS PROFITABLE ADVERTISING, THEN YOUR ADVERTISING BELONGS IN ---

Serve Spicy Beef Tacos for Snack or Mexican Meal

For a foreign fare, bring on the tacos, a Mexican style sandwich made with a hot spicy ground beef mixture. Tacos are perfect served as a party snack, or as a lunch or supper entree, according to Reba Staggs, home economist of the National Live Stock and Meat Board.

Ground Beef Tacos

2 pounds ground beef
1 package (1¼ ounces) taco seasoning mix
1 cup water
10 taco shells
1¼ cups finely shredded lettuce
3 to 2 tomatoes, peeled and finely diced
½ cup shredded Cheddar cheese

Brown ground beef in frying pan, separating into small chunks. Pour off drippings. Add taco seasoning mix and water. Bring to boil, reduce heat and cook 10 to 15 minutes, stirring occasionally. Heat taco shells according to package directions. Place approximately ¼ cup beef mixture in each taco shell. Add equal amounts of lettuce to each taco shell top with 1 tablespoon diced tomato and 1 tablespoon shredded cheese. 5 servings, 2 tacos each.
